School chief Miller accepts job in north valley

By Steve Marschke

After three years at the helm of the Washington Unified School District, superintendent Dr. David Miller has made plans to move on.

On Friday, Miller signed a four-year contract to replace a retiring superintendent in the Orland school district in Glenn County -- a northern area of the Sacramento Valley. He will begin work in Orland on July 1, leaving time to finish out the current school year in West Sacramento.

He planned to announce his departure to the Washington Unified school board at their meeting last night, and declined comment to the News-Ledger until after that announcement.

Miller, whose family moved to West Sacramento when he took the local job and left his previous position in the Fresno area in 1994, will go from the 5,749-student Washington Unified School District to the 2,303-student system in Orland.

His new salary of $85,000 plus benefits (according to a report in the Sacramento Valley Mirror), however, will be comparable to his compensation in West Sacramento.

Several months after beginning work for Washington Unified in 1994, Miller's three year contract was extended an additional month by a visibly pleased school board. But the school boards sitting more recently have no signs of extending that contract further, and by allowing the time remaining on his contract to slip below the two-year mark, they are believed to have encouraged him to look elsewhere.

In marked contrast to the 1993 school board's ouster of the previous superintendent, Dr. Del Alberti, the present board has been restrained in its criticism of Miller, however, and precise reasons for any dissatisfaction with his performance have not been made public.

Miller's reign as superintendent included a successful attack on unexcused absences among local students and a concerted effort to clean up and improve school facilities. Administrators, faculty, staff and students all were enlisted to help paint and remodel local schools in an effort to improve both pride and the teaching environment.

Although Miller and the school board were unsuccessful in getting two-thirds of the public to vote 'yes' on school bonds for a new high school, they have made plans to build a new elementary school on Linden Road.

Cops try out infrared eye

By Steve Marschke

West Sacramento police just finished a three-week trial of one of the latest pieces of technology available for law enforcement -- and liked it very much.

The device, a "thermal imaging system," works like a video camera that senses infrared instead of visible light. While the most obvious use is that of finding a hiding suspect among shrubbery or behind a fence, perhaps in the dark, other uses also abound, said Sgt. Derek Brummett, who has used the system.

The infrared detector works by detecting changes in heat given off by people, autos and other items. The "camera" portion of the $8,000 device was mounted on the roof of a police supervisor's squad car, with a viewing screen inside the car between the front seats. A joystick between the seats enables officers to swivel the camera around 360 degrees, checking in all directions.

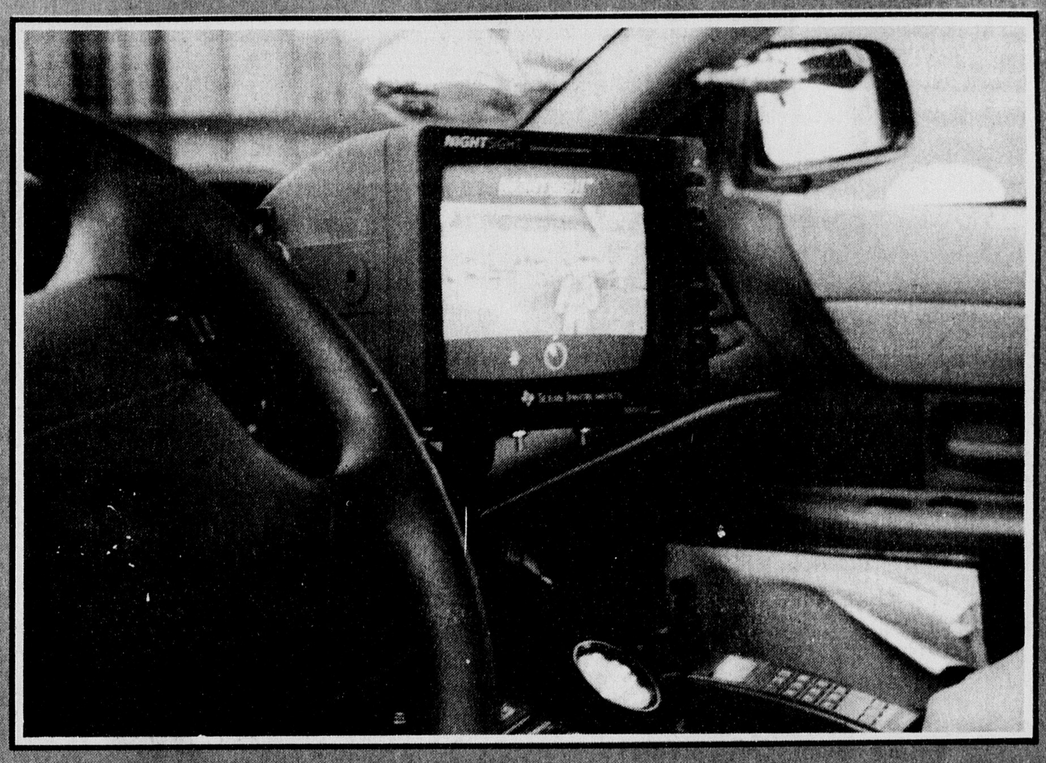

The officers tested the device for local media over the weekend, using a live person "hiding" from searchers at night.

"We went to one of the local business with a lot of shrubbery outside, and stuck someone in the shrubbery," said Brummett. "You couldn't see this person even if you were within a couple of feet. But with this device, the person's form popped right up."

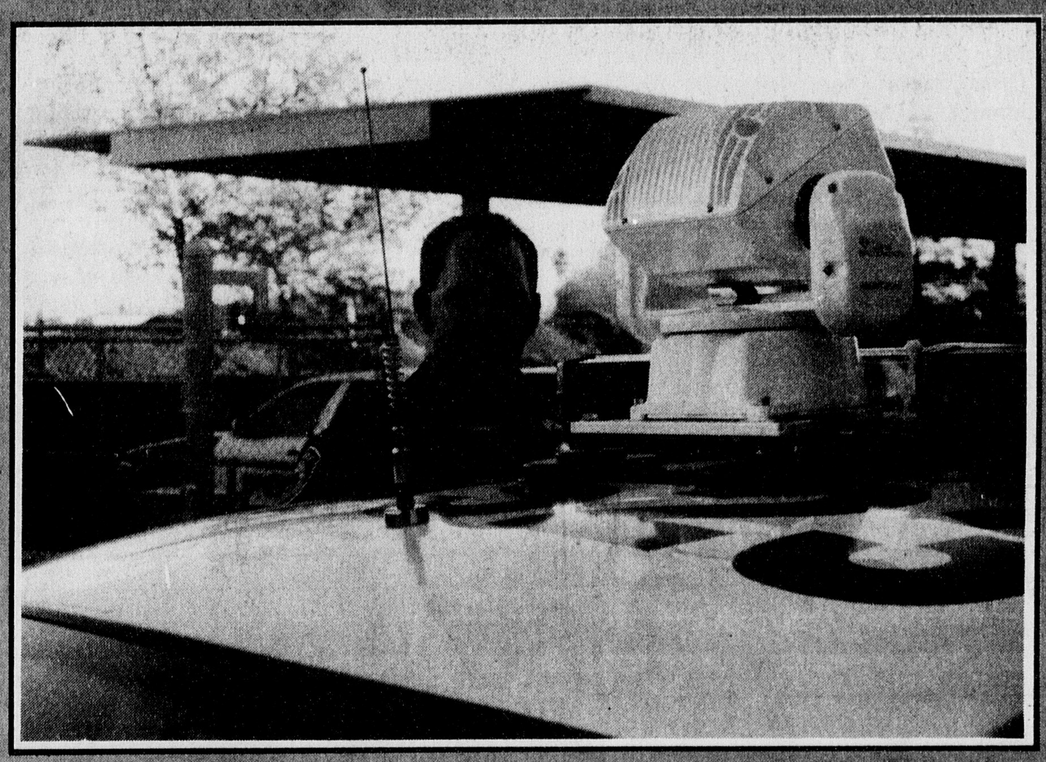

The same technology let's the viewer spot humans in the area even in dense fog. It also picks out the radiators and exhaust pipes of running cars, even at night or in the fog.

"You're only limited by your imagination how you use this," said Brummert. "For instance, when you're patrolling a business area late at night, you can tell if a car was parked near one of the businesses recently because of its heat. That might

Please see INFRARED, p. 9

THE VIDEO SCREEN mounted next to the driver's seat of a squad car shows what the infrared sensing camera sees -- in this case, an approaching officer walking in the police department's parking lot. The man's image would be visible even at night, and even if he were concealed from view behind shrubs or a fence -- making the "thermal imaging system" a potentially helpful tool for cops in pursuit of hiding suspects.

SGT. DEREK BRUMMETT next to the futuristic sensing device mounted on top of a West Sacramento squad car for a three-week trial period. The sensor can be pivoted 360 degrees, under the control of a video-game style joystick mounted at the officer's right hand inside the patrol car.

Merchandise stolen from trucking firm found in Sacto home

A Sacramento man was arrested after a West Sacramento trucking company reported a chronic problem with merchandise disappearing from its loading facilities.

"Following a long investigation by Detective Bombardier, he was arrested March 4," said Lt. Dave Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Department.

In custody is Jose Manriquez, 21.

A search warrant served on Manriquez's residence turned up about $4,000 worth of property reported missing by the trucking firm, which had lost new boxed bicycles, auto parts, telephones and other merchandise.

"Apparently, he'd been involved in this over a period of time," said Farmer.

West Sac City Council approves plan, drops new sewage facility

The West Sacramento City Council last Wednesday approved a city staff recommendation that the city not build a new sewage treatment plant in its southern area.

Instead, the council agreed that the city should pursue three other alternatives in meeting the growing city's future treatment needs.

West Sacramento will continue to explore the possibility of hooking up with the County of Sacramento's sewage plant to contract for treatment, create a similar deal with Yolo County jurisdictions (including perhaps Davis and Woodland), or expanding the city's existing sewage plant on South River Road south of 15th St.

"Our major focus remains on the two previous options, of contracting with Sacramento or expanding the current plant," said city councilman Greg Potnick.

Council member Mark Montemayor had last month asked if the Yolo County option, as well, could be explored.

Phone solicitor gives (a little bit) to charity

By Steve Marschke

If you donate $10 to the California Police Activities League to support recreational activities for youth, how much of that donation will be used for "overhead" and fundraising costs?

a.) Less than $2.

b.) About half.

c.) Over $8.

If you picked "c," over $8, you're right. Like a lot of other fundraising groups championing causes that are, or which seem to be, worthwhile, the California Police Activities League spends most of the money it raises on itself.

Some spend 90 percent or more of what they raise on expenses and fundraisers' commissions. Others -- "fake" groups -- tell you they're raising money for charity when they are really only in business for themselves.

The California Police Activities League is now phoning West Sacramento residents asking for donations to support park and recreation opportunities for youth and help keep them out of crime.

"I don't personally endorse the phone solicitation procedure they use," said Police Chief Larry Gore, who is also familiar with the group from his prior job in San Diego. "There's no money as far as I know that comes to the city of West Sacramento from this. But I think they are a legitimate organization."

Gore said he was aware that a relatively small share of the money raised went to charity from the group, and the "rest of it goes into the pockets of professional fundraisers."

Phone solicitors are required to tell you how much of what you give winds up in their own pockets. Don't be afraid to ask them.

A phone solicitor from the California Police Activities League called a News-Ledger reporter last week to ask for a donation, leading off with a question asking whether the state's law enforcement personnel needed support from the public in the fight against crime.

When the solicitor received a "yes" answer, she began to ask for a donation for this fight. She was asked how much of the donation would make it to the charity effort, and replied, "all of it."

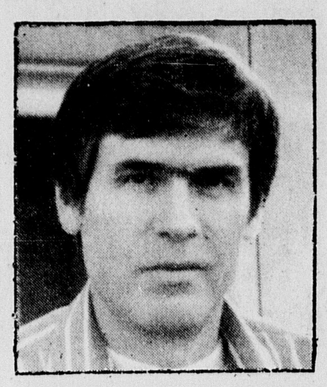

Although admitting that she was a professional fundraiser and not a member of the law enforcement community, the woman said she "didn't know" whether some of the donation would be peeled off to pay for fundraising expenses including her own commission.

A spokesperson reached at the group's Sacramento office said that 82 percent of the money brought in from the campaign went to expenses such as fundraising commissions, and 18 percent made it to charity efforts.

Residents are advised to be wary of phone calls from groups asking for money, and to ask for information in writing before supporting any unknown group.

A moving evening spent watching Kindertransport

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Having long believed that history is the most humanizing discipline of all, I was excited to hear that Roy Engoron, the director of River City High School's Drama Department and the driving force behind more than sixty local theatrical productions since 1967, had chosen Kindertransport for this year's spring play. "We are the first high school in the nation to attempt staging it," Mr. Engoron explained to me last week as the play concluded its successful six day run at Yolo High School's Ezer Matthews Memorial Performing Arts Center. "It's beautifully written, but it's a very difficult play," he continued. "There's no personal reference for the actors, all of whom are much too young to remember the Jewish Holocaust. The play is also constructed with the past and present running concurrently, which is not only difficult for the players, but challenging to the audience as well. Plus there were accents to learn, complex emotions to be explained, even publishing rights which came all the way from London. But I'm so proud of the kids. They've been working hard on it since last October and they've done a really wonderful job."

The play takes us back to one of history's most shameful periods, when anti-Semitic activity was on the rise throughout the world, most notably in Nazi Germany, where concentration camps were overflowing with Jews and where ovens were being fired up for the 'final solution'. In a heroic effort to save as many Jewish children as possible before World War Two broke out, the Movement for the Care of Children from Germany was created and almost ten thousand unaccompanied young Jewish boys and girls were whisked out of Germany just in the nick of time.

Kindertransport is the story of one such girl, Eva, and the cast included (in order of appearance) Joey Mejia as the Ratcatcher, Jaqueline White as Eva, Sarah Templin as Helga, Ashley Carroll as Evelyn, Leticia Valenzuela as Faith and Alyssa Murphy as Lil.

As I watched the play (there was a full house the night I attended), I was especially impressed with the lighting of the Ratcatcher, the special effects of the train, and of course the set, props, and costumes. But what really stood out was how well the actors and actresses were playing off each other. "They've become a true ensemble," Mr. Engoron told me during intermission. "It's really difficult to pick out just who's doing the best job up there."

After the play was finished I decided to ask a few members of the cast and crew to give me some insights into how difficult it is to act and work in such a demanding play. "I get really nervous about three hours before it begins," said Sarah Templin, who played Helga, the German mother, "but then when it actually starts, I go completely numb, and everything seems to work out just fine from there."

"It was hard for me to learn the German I needed to speak for my part," said Jaqueline White, who played Eva, the young girl whose life is so disrupted by her move to England. "Plus I have to wear a lot of depressing clothes, but it's been a really great experience and now I hope to be an actress someday."

Ashley Carroll, who played Evelyn, the adult Eva, told me, "This is my first play and I really like how well everyone has gotten along. I get nervous before it starts, too, but I just go tell jokes and sing songs with Toni Venditti (the Stage Manager)."

Joey Mejia, who plays all five male parts, said, "I kinda like goose-stepping around the stage. Plus I get to throw Eva down on the ground every night."

Alyssa Murphy, who as Lil has one of the most demanding roles in the play because her character is always going back and forth in time, told me, "This play has really taught me the importance of teamwork. I've also learned what a lot of kids had to go through just to survive that terrible time."

Leticia Valenzuela was also impressive as Evelyn's daughter, Faith, and her well-acted emotional reaction to learning about her mother's past was instrumental in bringing the second act to its dramatic conclusion.

My last question was to a group of kids from 'the crew' and I asked them when they first knew that they had a hit on their hands. "That's easy," said a voice I never got around to identifying, "at the end of Opening Night, when Mr. Engoron couldn't stop smiling!"

And talking about that all important crew, here they are: Tina Cahill and Heidi Souza, Technical Directors; Dennis Newhall, Master Sound Engineer; Tony Venditti, Stage Manager; Scott Hampton and Joel Templin, Assistant Stage Managers; Poonam Prasad, Joseph Brown, Rishi Sharma and James Goodwin, Assistants to the Director; Leesa Aragon, Harmony Zito, Jarod Kimerer, Audrey Zoinikov, Amy Burke, Jennifer Cieri, Brianne Vaughn, Sarah Franklin, Chris Pease, Joseph Meier, Nicholas McGreevy, Joseph Brown, Jose Peralta and Rhonta Woods, Stage Crew Members; Joseph Brown, Cheryl Alander and John Goeden, Props; Shobna Kumar and Stephanie Craig, Make-up; Angela Prasad and Jennifer Morris, Costumes; Chris Pease, Joseph Brown, Joseph Meier and Nicholas McGreevy, Lights and Sound; Leah Riggs, Rebecca Wickliffe, Ron Cooper, Lisa Portwood, Amanda McCurdy and Josh Pruitt, House/Tickets; Bethany Monroe, Rishi Sharma, Amanda Ramirez, Lindsey Fortune and Josh Pruitt, Publicity.

Raider tennis starts season with string of victories, goes 5-0

From River City High School

As they prepare to defend their Golden Empire League title, members of the River City High School Tennis Team were defeating a trio of nonleague teams last week, improving their 1997 record to a perfect 5 and 0.

Tuesday saw Vanden of the Superior California Athletic League in West Sac. for a best-of-nine match in which the Raiders prevailed 6-3. #1 boys singles player Ahmad Fazel faced the top ranked boy in the entire Sac-Joaquin Section, Erik Watkins, and played well despite losing 2-6, 2-6. Also taking an uncustomary loss was the #1 girls doubles team of Bethany Monroe and Aenoy Xayasone, 4-10, as the Vikings put their two best girls in the #1 doubles spot. However, the Raiders depth was too much for the Vikes as the hometown team received easy wins from singles players Jeff Wright (6-1, 6-2 at #2), Douangchanh Lattasima (6-0, 6-0 at #1 girls), and Meuy Saechao (6-3, 6-0 at #2). Doubles highlights included the dominant performance of seniors Peter Santizo and Khonthavy Phouanglasy in mixed, 10-2, and the successful varsity debut of Aaron Potnick in #2 boys doubles where he paired with veteran Alex Klimushkin in a 10-5 win.

On Thursday, RC hit the road for the first time this season, defeating Amador in Sutter Creek, 4-1. Playing by the host's Mother Lode League five-match format, Raider Coach Dave Brooks juggled his line-up a bit and received wins from Lattasima (8-0), Santizo and Wright (8-6 in boys doubles), Saechao and Monroe (8-2 in girls doubles), and Xayasone and Sarom Phoung (8-2 in mixed doubles).

Once again Fazel played well despite losing 4-8 to another of Northern California's toughest highschoolers, the Thundering Herd's Nick Sheehan.

The Raiders returned home for a Friday encounter with a veteran Highlands team and posted their third shutout of the young season, 9-0. Fazel's fine play was finally rewarded with a victory at #1 boys singles, 8-3. Individual match shutouts were posted by Jeff Wright at #2 boys singles, Saechao at #2 girls singles, Phoung and Souvannaphoungeun at #1 boys doubles, and Santizo and Phouanglasy in mixed.

In the week ahead, the Raiders travel to Livingston tomorrow to take on the defending Trans Valley League champion Wolves, and host Foothill next Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. The Golden Empire League opener follows on Thursday, March 20 at Golden Sierra.

The 49ers and the Raiders made big-time steals in the free agent market last week. The 49ers signed running back Garrison Hearst for $600,000 and a base salary of $200,000 in 1997, keeping the team under the salary cap. Hearst can earn extra money easily with incentives, like $300,000 for scoring one rushing touchdown.

Next year, he gets $1 million in base pay and another million in roster bonus.

The Raiders signed Desmond Howard, this year's Super Bowl MVP, to a four-year deal that will pay Desmond about $1.5 million per year, and he received a $2 million signing bonus. The Raiders promised him the opportunity to play wide receiver to go along with his kicking duties.

Warren Moon signed a $1.65 million, two-year deal with the Seattle Seahawks and Dallas kicker Chris Boniol has been offered a four-year deal with the Eagles for $2.5 million! The Cowboys are in shock and now have to match that or lose their kicker.

The Sacramento Kings (28-34) have 20 games remaining and currently hold onto the seventh spot in the playoff race. The Kings trail Minnesota by three games for the sixth spot and lead the Los Angeles Clippers by half a game, the Suns by 3 1/2, and the Warriors by 4 1/2.

The Kings are 5-5 in their last ten games.

The Kings began a three-game homestand last night against the Cleveland Cavaliers (33-27) and then face the Toronto Raptors (21-40) on Thursday and finish the homestand on Sunday against the revamped Dallas Mavericks (19-41). They can win all three of these games, but they need to work on their defense in the final quarter and get somebody besides Richmond and Abdul-Rauf to step up on offense and score some points in the final minutes.

The Kings lost both road games last week, losing badly to Phoenix on Friday night and dropping the ball to Golden State in the final minutes 102-98.

Kings tickets are still available at the Arco Arena box office or at any BASS ticket outlet.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Another change for the schools

As expected, Dr. David Miller has found another job.

With a year left on his contract and no sign of an extension from the current school board, the W.U.S.D. superintendent clearly got the signal he was being invited to "look elsewhere" and he did, settling in for a four-year contract in the northern Sacramento Valley.

To outsiders, this is somewhat perplexing.

Miller did not get along well with everyone and as a manager certainly had his faults.

But his policies, by and large, were good, and the school board's reasons for dissatisfaction with Miller are not entirely clear. Some of this confusion is due to a need by the board to keep their personnel decisions confidential.

Is the board that certain that they can find and hire a new superintendent who will perform better than Miller -- enough better to justify the change of horses midstream?

By the only criteria available to the public, Miller has done a good job here.

Every four years, it seems, some presidential incumbent or challenger (depending on the state of the U.S.) asks the American public to ask themselves the question, "are you better off now than you were four years ago?"

The answer, it is argued, should determine whether you reward the incumbent with another "yes" vote or oust him and replace him with his rival.

When West Sacramento is asked, "are your schools better off now than they were three years ago," the answer from objective data is "yes." Programs and facilities are more-or-less on the right track. Miracles haven't occurred, but basic progress has.

If Miller was not capable of making adjustments in his policy to suit the current school board, so be it.

But as a new superintendent is selected, West Sacramento residents should make it a point to remember exactly why this has once again become necessary, and to hold their school board directly responsible for the results.

The most important thing is to keep the progress going.

Environmentalists wrong

Gravel mining:

Let's see, the environmentalist lost the vote in the election. Now they say it was because of money. Did they ever think possibly some of the people are waking up to the fact that not all environmental ideas are good ones?

I voted for gravel mining. As the county, city and state need jobs. Revenue from the jobs and related revenue from the sale of the gravel. Some were worried about the Swenson Hawk and their presence in the mining area. It does not look like a big problem for the hawk to fly a few miles from the mining area and look for food. Possibly the mining would also create a food source for hawks and other animals.

With the untold millions of flood damage from the storms, I have not noticed one environmentalists out helping solve the problem. In fact the environmentalists should be proud of the property damage they caused by fighting any type of levee work and all the paper work they require to have levee work done.

We are told to recycle, save the environment. We'll try to build a recycle plant. The same ones who say recycle show up and complain about the plant. How much money is lost to the city of West Sacto. with the loss of the news paper recycle plant?

The same ones who want to block any and all construction of dams, logging and so on also live in homes with electricity, homes built from wood. If you have saw an interview of one of the anti logging persons, you would have noticed the home was wood, wood lining the walkway to the home, wooden shed full of fire wood.

They we are not to cut trees, I was wondering how or where they managed to get the wood for their home and heating with out cutting any trees.

Public policy & hazards

If todays letters to the Editor are to be believed, our town would be a happier place if we eliminate affordable housing, issue each resident an AK-47, and return the country "to the way it used to be -- sovereign." Sovereign? I guess that means giving the land back to the Indians we stole it from.

All this immigrant bashing is really getting tiresome -- especially since all our ancestors fell into that same category. This passion for scapegoating (stirred up by jolly old gov. Wilson) has a nasty taste of racial bigotry. We don't hear many complaints about white immigrants from Canada or Europe -- just Mexicans, East Indians and Asians. Of course if some people want to spend their time fighting immigrants, affordable housing and gun control -- it's a free country. But I, for one, question their priorities.

And speaking of priorities, sometimes the City gets theirs upside-down. As I understand it, "Eminent domain" is the authority that the City occasionally uses to forcibly "acquire property for a purpose that is in the public interest." In order to take a property, the City must prove it poses an economic, social or dangerous blight to the community.

The City acquired and destroyed the adult book stores because it was presumed they created a "social blight." This was a highly debatable premise based on a kind of moral reasoning that made me feel uneasy. While one letter writer hugs his guns to his bosom and worries about the Second Amendment, this letter writer prefers to worry about the First Amendment. Perhaps even Goldie has a right to free speech.

The City also acquired and destroyed the Broderick Market because it created a presumed "economic blight." Another highly debatable premise -- it is reported that developers were concerned that their employees would not want to work, park their cars and go out to lunch in such a neighborhood. I worked, parked and lunched in that same complex for years with nary a mugging. I know we don't have a reputation as a town of dear hearts and gentle people, but surely these ultra sophisticated investors have heard of "Emmas?"

Then we come to a truly "dangerous blight." The abandoned rice mill has been an accident just waiting to happen for years. Heidi, a child of our village, has now suffered a brutal death. Where was "eminent domain" in this case?

We preach the old adage -- Safety First. Too bad we don't practice what we preach and honestly treat economic concerns as secondary to the physical well being of residents (this caution applies to the dangerous chemical pollutants of local industry as well). We don't have a crystal ball. Accidents will happen. But an abandoned looming complex like that rice mill should have set off a blinking red light in all our heads.

At the last City Council meeting, it was announced there would be an audit of all vacant commercial properties. It is a good idea but most adults become too regimented in their thinking. I hope the staff people surveying these parcels will try to view them through the eyes of a fearless child who considers the whole world one grand playground. As adults responsible for protecting children, I think we all share some blame for Heidi's tragic death. Let's wake up, look carefully around and be sure it doesn't happen again.

Local musicians

Music was in the air on Sunday, March 2, at the West Sacramento Senior Center when the West Sacramento Community Orchestra played a lively concert. The group of volunteer musicians are enthusiastically lead by Conductor Gordon Waters in a varied program of familiar music such as Showboat Selections by Jerome Kern and less well-known pieces, for instance, Two Sketches for Orchestra by Clare Grundman. The round of applause after each selection was an indication of how well the musicians performed the music and the pleasure the audience found in the music.

The volunteers are obviously very dedicated to give as much of their time necessary to rehearse so many pieces to be able to play them so well.

My husband, Joe, and I want to thank the orchestra for their dedication and beautiful music and encourage others to attend the next performance in April. West Sacramento can feel proud that we have an orchestra.

Gifts to senior center

I would like to inform mostly the seniors in the community that the East Yolo Senior Club is donating the following articles to the senior center, a piano, TV, VCR, flag and flag pole, showcase, microwave oven, two computers, pool table, 100 cup coffee urn, large folding table and chairs and our P.A. system. So the senior center will continue to put these things to good use for the benefit of all seniors.

Also these are the programs the club had going when the city moved in: Spanish class, Tai Chi, painting or art class, ceramics knit and cro., quilting, solar cooking, Bible study, blood pressure, tenants social evening and the monthly senior potluck.

Some of these are still ongoing and more have been added by the city so with the closing of the club I wanted the seniors to know things will go on as they were before. And I will still be working towards anything that will help the seniors and future seniors in our community also a permanent senior building in the near future.

Follow the true-life account of this Iowa State English professor as he tries to find the plagiarist who has stolen his work. Plagiarism is stealing -- not of money but of ideas and words. Objects more intrinsically valuable, at least to the writer, than money. Professor Bowers leads the reader on an adventurous pursuit for moral good.

New Books for Young Readers

The Turner Branch has acquired many new additions for young readers including selections from the Way People Live Series which is published by Lucent Books. These books provide historical and contemporary accounts of places and events found throughout the world. Life in the South During the Civil War by James P. Reger, for example, examines the interplay between economics, slavery, and social relations that existed in the South as war devastated a culture and collapsed the Confederate nation. Diane Yancey explores Life in War-Torn Bosnia and discusses the anguish of a people caught in the senseless atrocities of a war spurred by ethnic and religious differences. Finally, Life on a Medieval Pilgrimage by Don Nardo takes the reader to a time of saintly worship surrounded by knights in armor, magnificent cathedrals, and mystifying art. The library is also increasing its collection of Eyewitness Visual Dictionaries. These dictionaries are the ultimate guide to naming parts, detailing topics, and discovering how "things" work. In the Visual Dictionary of Physics, readers learn the basic principles of electricity production, reflection and refraction, and atom construction. Each chapter is lavishly illustrated and supplemented by concise explanations. Other texts include the Visual Dictionary of Plants and the Visual Dictionary of Special Military Forces.

Police log

March 7, 6:20 p.m.

A 37-year old 5th St. man was contacted by police regarding an assault on his roommate. He fought officers, injuring one in the hand, and attempted to jump a fence while fleeing. The fence broke, falling on a trailer and damaging it. The man was caught and arrested.

March 7, 7:20 p.m.

An officer was dispatched to a West Capitol Ave. business on the report of two females attempting to cash a forged check. The bank involved in the account confirmed that the forged check's account numbers were valid. At least one arrest was made -- that of a 21-year old West Sacramento woman.

March 8, 9:45 p.m.

An officer saw a 26-year old male transient walking on 5th St., and when the man saw the officer, he hid a shiny metal object in his waistband and covered it with his shirt. The officer confronted him and found that the concealed object was a 14 inch knife. The man also had a marijuana cigarette in a pocket. He was booked.

March 10, 5:06 a.m.

A caller to the police said that the shower fixture in his motel room had broken, and the motel manager had refused to give him a refund on the night's rent. The manager contended that the resident had broken the fixture himself. The tenant had a cut on one hand from the fixture, but refused treatment.

March 10, 9:11 a.m.

A female caller reported the theft of a license plate from her vehicle on Evergreen Cir.

March 10, 11:43 a.m.

A woman said she nearly hit a 1-year old child with her car, and that the baby had been playing next to the street without supervision. She located the child's aunt, who returned the baby to its home, and police contacted the mother about her child playing unsupervised near the street.

March 10, 12:09 p.m.

A Riverpoint Cir. market reported a man had just tried to cash a bunch of travellers' checks with no one's name on them, and that he would surely take them to another merchant.

March 10, 8:07 p.m.

Near James St., an officer stopped a 25-year old man on a bicycle for not having a bike light. The man struggled and was detained. He appeared to be under the influence of narcotics, and the officer asked him where the "dope" was. When the officer reached towards the suspect's pocket, the suspect said, "O.K., there it is." A small bag of methamphetamines was found. The man was arrested.

March 10, 9:55 p.m.

An officer pulled over a vehicle for travelling with one headlight out near West Capitol and Westacre. When approaching, he saw the driver reach between the seats. The officer obtained permission to search the vehicle and found a wallet between the seats with two baggies of methamphetamines. A third container was found inside a bottle of valium which was prescribed to someone else.

March 10, 12:52 a.m.

A 45-year old male prowler was reported in the area of a B St. apartment complex.

Suspects alleged to have forged checks

By Steve Marschke

Two locals are under arrest for their involvement in a "ring" of forgery involving stolen checks and bank account information.

Federal arrest warrants were served on March 3 for Rudolfo Hernandez Valencia, 31, and Roseann Dazo, 34, both of West Sacramento, for their involvement. Five others were charged with circulating the forged checks.

"Over the last couple of months, we've had a number of forged and altered checks and money orders being passed among merchants in the (Sacramento) area," said Lt. Dave Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Dept.

"Detective Christiansen worked with postal authorities and others and we arrested two people."

Also involved in the investigation were the Sacramento County Sheriff's Dept., the Sacramento Police Dept. and the U.S. Attorney's Office. Authorities are aware of about $140,000 in losses from the counterfeit ring.

Farmer said it was impossible to guess how great the losses were specifically to West Sacramento merchants.

The counterfeiters are believed to have stolen checks from the mail and using the account numbers to print and circulate their own checks on the victims' accounts, for as long as there was money in the accounts.

Farmer warned merchants to be careful when cashing checks and other non-cash payment, asking for proper identification and carefully matching the information on the driver's license or other information to the person whose name is on the check.

Potential candidates for this award should be Yolo County physicians, nurses, or other health care practitioners. The Ada Merhoff award was created in 1993. It recognizes the efforts of local health care advocates and volunteers to increase access to health care for lower income Yolo County residents. The first recipient of the award in 1993 was Ada Merhoff, long-time health care activist. In 1996 the award was given jointly to Bill and Juanita Spiller.

Nominations should be in written form, with a short description of the candidate's local health care contributions and activities. Please mail nominations by Friday, April 4 to: Dr. Robert Bates, Yolo County Department of Public Health, 10 Cottonwood Street, Woodland, CA, 95695.For more information, please call 758-4165, 758-3178, or 753-3000.

Yolo Co. seeks foster homes

Yolo County is in need of licensed foster homes for many abused and neglected children of all ages. Sometimes, a child is in need of out-of-home care for a short time. Other times, a child may need longer or permanent out-of-home care. In either case, the department wants to help familiarize individuals with foster parenting and foster children's needs and assist them in deciding what type of child might best be suited for their family.

To achieve this objective, the Yolo County Department of Social Services provides three free informational meetings for prospective foster parents which address questions and concerns relating to foster care. Although it is not required, the department recommends that the meetings be attended in sequence as it will provide a better understanding of the process that children and foster parents encounter when they enter the foster care system. All three trainings are required to obtain a foster license.

The next orientation series is scheduled for March 19 and March 26 from 6 to 8 p.m. at 170 West Beamer Street in Woodland. Reservations are required. For more information call Linda Satterburg at 666-8471.

Oakland A's shocked second baseman Brent Gates by giving him his release and handing the job to rookie Scott Spiezio, who was a third baseman last year at Triple-A Edmonton. Spiezio, 24, hit 20 home runs and drove in 91 runs in 140 games. By cutting Gates, the 27-year old, the A's saved $675,000 by paying him only $135,000 of his $810,000 contract.

The Giants, who have been on a winning streak in Arizona, winning six of seven, and with a team batting average of .333, are averaging over six runs a game. Bill Mueller is battling for the third base job and is hitting .524 with five doubles. Starting pitchers Osvaldo Fernandez and Mark Garnder have been pitching well.

Boxing returns on Monday, April 7, at the Memorial Auditorium with West Sac's undefeated junior featherweight Willie Jorrin taking on the WBC's 7th ranked fighter Enrique Jupiter (30-6-1, 25 KOs). Tickets are priced at $22, $32 and $42.

Captain Tom Hoffman said it will be his strong recommendation, added to those of the officers who had a chance to use it during the trial period, that the West Sacramento Police Dept. acquire two or three of the sensors.

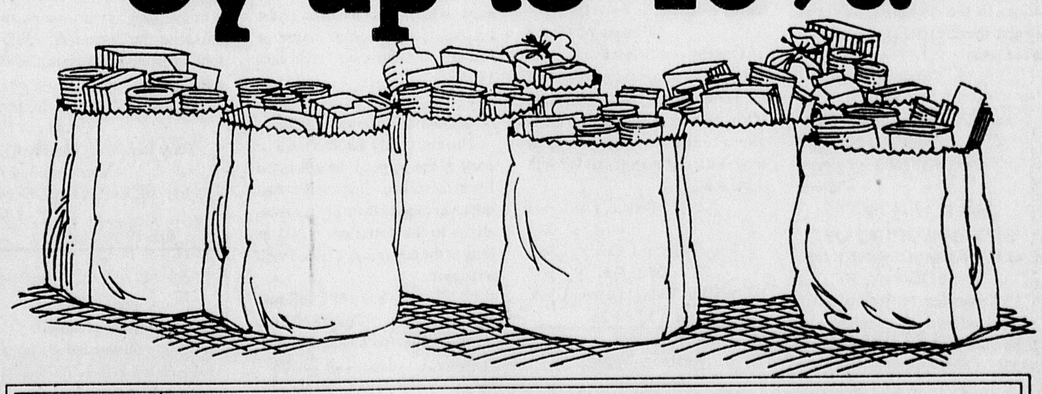

"It's a useful piece of equipment that will certainly improve officer safety," he said. "We were thinking about maybe two or three of them mounted on supervisors' units."

The unit tested by police in West Sacramento was manufactured by Texas Instruments and sold by a Bay Area firm.
